Hold Your Horses

Thank you for Joe Fitzpatrick's uncovering some of the deplorable ways of the present (soon to be ex) Pebble Beach Company ownership and executives in your July 1st issue. I write today just to correct one line, which says that "last year, the company moved the equestrian center to a new location." Oops, hold your horses! Not yet, and possibly not ever: the Equestrian Center is still in its place. And with the new Ownership coming on board soon, I have every hope that new talks will take place, and that this historic equestrian facility will be saved and become once again the international center it was under Dick Collins and more recently, in the Eighties, under Derek and Bea Di Grazia.

Call-In Day

July 16th is set as a national call-in day. Call Senator Boxer at 202-202-3553 and Senator Feinstein at 202-224-3841 and Secretary of State Albright at 202-647-6576. The Call is to your government representatives to ask them to approve and ratify the Comprehensive Test Ban Treaty (CTBT). It is for our own safety and for that of our children; because ratifying CTBT is the most effective action the US can take to stop nuclear arms race. We have a great obligation to prevent the spread of nuclear weapons, to persuade other countries not to test, transfer, acquire, possess, or produce such weapons. But we must start at home if we are to set an example, to lead others to follow.

There is nothing to gain by waiting. Forty-four nations possess nuclear weapons already. The number will grow as we hesitate to act. We signed the treaty in 1996. Seventy percent of the people surveyed in the U.S. are for it. But it is frozen in the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. Ask for it to come out for a debate and a vote. We owe it to our children and grand children to Call for a Safer America.

Ammo Donation to Goodwill?

If you drove by the Mid Valley Safeway Tuesday morning, you may have noticed the bevy of cops and fire engines. It was not early preparation for this weekend's Great Balls of Fire street dance, it was due to the discovery of a wooden box with "AMMUNITION FOR CANNON WITH EXPLOSIVE PROJECTILES" stenciled on top. The box was discovered by Jose Quibuyen in the brush alongside the Goodwill Donation Station he works at.

The fire department and the sheriff evacuated the area from Dorris Drive to Center Street up to Carmel Valley Road. A representative from the 787th Ordinance Company out of Moffet Field relayed that the box could contain a military explosive with a killing radius of 100 meters. At 11:45a.m. EOD techni-

Who's Stalking Your Cookie Jar?

DEATH & TAXES

By Barbra Alexander

are tough words. Each on its own is hard enough to stomach. Unfortunately at the end, they arrive together. Consequently, you could lose over seventy percent of your inheritance. The question is not whether your inherited assets are safe, but more accurately, who will really get your inheritance - you or the IRS?

You have worked hard to build a legacy for your family. How you protect your property now will ultimately define how much you will leave to your heirs and how much the IRS will gobble up in estate taxes. You have doubtless heard the phrase 'Nobody plans to fail, they only fail to plan'. Nowhere is this simple phrase more relevant than in the retirement-estate area of your financial life.

During a recent Money Hot Line interview, David Phillips, nationally known authority on wealth conservation, told me that seventy five percent of Americans do not have an estate plan in place. This makes sense to me since most of us don't want to think much about this topic. However, the vociferous governmental machine is lurking just outside the family ring, hoping to clean out your vault the minute you no longer have control of your assets.

Although you have been taxed all your life the government is always hungry and will greedily devour any of your financial assets lying around loose. They could confiscate up to seventy percent of your total wealth once you are gone.

Phillips challenged the audience to think about their own protection with some hard-hitting questions. See if any of these apply to you:

- Do you know if you need a will or a trust?
- Are you aware of the methods of protecting your estate from the IRS?
- How can you protect your assets if you are sick or disabled?
- How will probate affect your heirs and their inheritance?
- What is the best way to pass along your business interests?

To explain some of the answers to these questions he developed booklet describing the ten most common mistakes of estate planning, and how not to make them. Here are the highlights and some suggestions he made during the show.

1. Having no plan or having an antiquated or improper one.

The ten-year-old Will should not be treated as though nothing has changed. Logic would dictate that your property has changed in value and re-visiting the Will is going to be a revelation to many of you. So just do it, make the necessary changes and move on.

2. Not knowing about or misunderstanding the 1997 Tax Act and the impact it is having on you.

Many of you sighed in relief when the Tax Act passed. You believed that with the increase of the Unified Credit to $1 million no planning was needed. The truth is just the opposite.

3. Being lulled into a false sense of security that no one will have to pay estate taxes.

The greatest motivator to plan your estate properly seems to be the frenzy surrounding serious illness or a relative's recent death. Wouldn't it make sense to plan as a matter of course? How much clearer would your decisions be if they were based on logical thought instead of emotional panic?

4. Improper uses of jointly held property.

It is a mistake to think that by assigning everything to a close relative or spouse you are eliminating the probate process. This manner of asset disposition has many crevices into which the best of your intentions can slide into oblivion. Avoid the mishaps through proper planning, even those regarding current spouses and prior marriage children.

5. Blindly leaving everything to your spouse.

Establish a Credit Shelter Trust that will protect your right and that of your spouse to pass on the maximum of the unified credit, currently $650,000 for each spouse. This figure will be raised every year so be general when denoting the amount.

6. Not properly gifting the IRS approved ten thousand-dollar annual gift allowances.

I used to think that this annual gift was only applicable to family members, according to Phillips you may give ten thousand tax free to anyone you chose and to as many people as you want. The beauty is that each spouse can give the same amount separately.

7. Failure to properly name the beneficiaries of your pension or IRA retirement accounts.

If you took a lump sum retirement fund, rolled it into an IRA then the time to dispose of it properly is now. An alarming eighty-percent of Americans simply includes the IRA in their Will. The IRS lives for such moments because now they can tax these funds as both income and estate. The result is that your heirs will probably lose between seventy and eighty percent of the value of the investment. The best solution here is to spend your pension or IRA. If you must leave it to an heir be specific that they are to receive these funds on a 'minimum distribution' basis.

8. Lacking enough liquidity to pay estate taxes within nine months.

Any amount over the current credit exemption will be taxed at a beginning rate of thirty-seven percent and can be as high as fifty-five percent. With a tab like that it's likely that many of your assets must be sold to pay the taxes. Of course, your heirs could always borrow the needed tax money. Great, not only do they pay outrageous taxes, now they can pay interest as well.

9. Improperly owned or arranged life insurance.

It's likely that your life insurance agent told you that the policy proceeds are not taxable as income. True, but not the complete story, because those same proceeds are not exempt from estate taxes. There are ways to deal with this situation now. Please don't wait. A review by a professional estate analyst of your life insurance and beneficiaries should occur every five years.

10. Not preparing for the exorbitant cost of long-term medical care.

If long-term care is a genetic probability perhaps obtaining LTC insurance would be the best protection. Additionally you may want to place your assets into an irrevocable trust or investments that cannot be penetrated. Before deciding on any of these remedies you must adequately educate yourself.

That of course brings us full circle back to the beginning, your personal estate plan. Phillips concludes that 'procrastination is dangerous to your wealth' and asks why it is that seventy percent of America's millionaires fail to plan the logical distribution of their assets.

We know that lack of information or education, fear, cost and a sense of immortality all spell procrastination but in this case the waiting game is truly the loser's game. The estate tax is the most unjust tax we must endure and estate settlement fees, when assets are not properly disbursed, are likely to reach the upper limits of exorbitant.

Perhaps this information will be the catalyst to get you started in planning your estate, if not - how far will you let Uncle Sam reach into your Retirement Cookie Jar?

Unforgettable Items That Are Hard to Remember

TOUCHE! ... This from Dianna Dunn of Carmel Highlands:

When Tom Wolfe's most recent book, "A Man in Full," came out a few months ago, writer John Updyke said pompously in review that it was merely "entertainment, not literature."

BIG mistake.

A couple of weeks ago when Wolfe was in England, he commented off-handedly to a London Telegraph reporter:

"IN my country there are 300 million people. And not one of them is waiting for the next John Updyke novel."

Game, set, match, Wolfe!

CAROL K. WILLIAMS of Salinas, NOT a rodeo buff at all, read that they're adding mounted CAMEL-RACING to the Salinas Rodeo this year and noted dryly:

"They're trying to expand their horizons of animal cruelty beyond the usual roster of frightened wild horses, steers, bulls, and the ever-dangerous baby calves.

"SO they decided to add camels this year. The object, as always, is to make the animals as completely uncomfortable, as terrified, and as miserable as humanly possible to delight the crowds!

"What other possible reason is there? It's just pure, unadulterated cruelty by people who get off on it."

OH come now, Carol, do you really think folks are INTENTIONALLY cruel, and not just simple, liquored up rustics who don't know compassion from Shinola?

Well, Carol?

Carol – "I'm thinking, I'm thinking."

TODAY'S QUOTE ... A fine political cartoon in N.Y. Daily News (repeated by S.F. Chronicle) showed Slobodan Milosevic reading a bulletin to several of his scruff military leaders and saying:

"The bad news is NATO wants us investigated for war crimes...The good news is the investigation will be handled by the Boulder, Colo., police."

JULIE FOUDY, the All-American midfielder from Stanford, is the wondrous U.S.A. Women's Soccer Team's resident off-the-wall court jester who coined a risqué phrase to describe her teammates:

"Booters with hooters!"

(It wouldn't be funny at all if one of them hadn't come up with it. It still isn't? Sorry. It was borderline, I admit. Please hurry on to next item. Thank you.)

SPEAKING of that team of fortune's darlings which won the Women's World Cup of Soccer last Saturday, it was a remarkable spectacle televised from the jam-packed (90,185 spectators) Rose Bowl in Pasadena in which BOTH teams did themselves forever proud!

We emphasize the word "BOTH" because the ABC commentators didn't seem to realize there were TWO teams involved, instead of just one. The other, they may be surprised to learn, was China.

IT was the same kind of "homer" commentating U.S. television usually reserves for the Olympics, so it may mean that soccer has finally ARRIVED in this country!

Worst of the "homers" was one Wendy Gabour, who said after penalties against the Chinese, "Great call by the official," and after each penalty against the U.S., (silence).

AT one point late in the contest, Wendy rhapsodized that the Americans were "playing with undying effort, heart and soul," while the Chinese were apparently doing it with mirrors, dumb luck and bad breath.

Although we don't know for sure, because Wendy couldn't think of anything to say about THEM.

NEVERTHELESS, that stirring contest may prove to be a watershed event in the previously ho-hum history of soccer in this country!

(Look, I'm aware that the American women previously won the World Cup in 1991, but who knew? Who cared? NOW it's different.)

WHAT CARMEL VALLEY NEEDS MORE OF

MORE people with appreciation of, and respect for, the land...People who do not regard concrete and blacktop as "improvements" on nature...People who walk...People who hike...People who garden...Animal people, such as horse people, dog people, bird people, deer people, and (within reason) cat people.

People willing to stand up and fight County Hall to protect the "country" atmosphere and feel of he valley...

PEOPLE willing to band together and vigorously oppose ambitious outside developers and their glib, hired-gun attorneys who don't give a fig how their monstrous projects would damage the quality of life here, but only how many Mercedes-Benzes and third and fourth vacation homes it will enable them to buy.

People like Domenico and Sol Vastarella (Sole Mio), Marilyn Beach and Terry Terflinger (White Oak Grill), and Stephen Mercurio and Sounil Quedou (Summer House), who have developed (yes, developed) extremely high quality restaurants in the valley without constructing colossal Taj Mahals to house them and acres of concrete for parking.

MORE teens like Vanessa Auburn of Carmel High School who is too busy to get into the trouble that idleness, torpor and sloth spawn. (More on her later.)

People like Cynthia and Rob Talbott, Jess and Gabriela Knubis, Don and Phyllis Hubbard, Ed and Teri Haber, and David and Laurie Benjamin, whose tastes are not all in their mouths...Schools like Tularcitos and All Saints where youngsters actually LEARN without fear of gangs, gun nuts and guerrillas...

GOOD GUYS like Nelson and Jen Foreman (Running Iron), Mike Hatten (plumbing), the Watts Family (glass), and Pat Phinney (Baja Cantina), who provide honest products and services at fair prices...

IN SHORT, what Carmel Valley needs are MORE of the type of people, establishments and services she already has, and LESS of the impossibly humongous "improvements" that greedy developers, pettifoggers, and four couldn't-care-less Supervisors want to foist off on her!

GETTING BACK to Vanessa Auburn...She's the kind of smart, conscientious, together, gung-ho 16-year-old that most parents may WISH they had.

She'll be a senior this fall at Carmel High, where she'll also be student body president, having been elected at the end of her junior year.

A TRACK STAR (she runs the 200 and 400 meters), she recently completed a track summer camp at Stanford University, which would love to enroll her as a full-time student next year!

But it's no slam-dunk, because University of Colorado and other distinguished schools are in the running, as well! (Some readers like subtle puns, some don't.)

SHE plans to major in communications and marketing, possibly to become a television news anchorwoman. But area anchors like Karina Rusk, Marilyn Getas, Erin Clark and Kate Callaghan need not be nervous.

It's the NETWORK anchors like Leslie Stahl, Diane Sawyer, Katie Couric, Jane Pauley and Barbara Walters who would be well-advised to update their resumes over the next five years before Vanessa enters the arena!

THIS summer, the trim, blonde, personable Vanessa is waitressing at White Oak Grill in the village, and sales clerking at a jewelry on Cannery Row.

Did I already say the valley needs more teens like Vanessa Auburn? Well, I'll say it again for emphasis:

Water Board to Meet Monday

The Board will hold a public hearing and receive comment on whether to approve the creation of a new water distribution system in Carmel Valley off Schulte Road. Water from an existing well would provide water for two existing parcels that were formerly part of the Valley Hills Ranch Property. The supply source for the water is the Carmel Valley acquirer and two small domestic Registration Certificates issued by the State Water Resources Control Board form the basis for this request. The parcels are not part of the Cal-Am distribution system.

A report on the Saved Water Credit Program, prepared by Denise Duffy & Associates, will be presented to the Board. The report is on the development of an Initial Study to reuse water savings at a site. Public comment will be received on this item.

The Board will also consider are receive public comment on the creation of the Aguajito Water Distribution System in Monterey. Water from an existing artesian well would provide subpotable water for landscaping irrigation of a four-lot subdivision previously approved by the City of Monterey in 1997. The water source is independent of the Carmel River basin and not subject to restrictions by State agencies.

The Board will consider the expansion of the Cal-Am's Hidden Hills Unit to provide service for the Mallery property, which is immediately adjacent to the existing service area. This water source is independent of the Carmel River Basin and not subject to state restrictions.

The Monterey Peninsula Water Management District Board of Directors will meet Monday, July 19 at 7p.m. at the City Council Chambers in Monterey.

PBC Announces Forest Plan Honorary Chairpersons

Pebble Beach Company officials have announced the names of individuals throughout the county who have volunteered to act as Honorary Chairpersons for their Del Monte Forest Plan. "We are very pleased and grateful that such an incredible and diverse group of Monterey County residents not only supports our Plan, but is also willing to assist us in gaining support and approval of it," said Pebble Beach Company Executive Vice President, Mark Stilwell. "The Honorary Chairpersons have agreed to let us use one of their most important assets - their good names - to support our Forest Plan. They have also agreed to actively assist the Company by writing letters and attending public hearings on behalf of the Plan."

"In addition to the support of this diverse group of community leaders, the Forest Plan also has the support of our neighbors, represented by the Del Monte Forest Property Owners Board, the staff of the Monterey County Planning Department and its independent environmental consultants, the Monterey County Subdivision Committee, and over 13,000 other County residents," added Stilwell.

AROUND TOWN
with ELIZABETH Cowley

It won't come as a big surprise to anyone that was there, but last weekend rocked at BlueFin. And, due to the Superbike crowd, it was perhaps the first time that men outnumbered women at a ratio something like 10 to 1. The staff at the Fin should be commended for their heroic effort over the weekend. Bruce, Fin manager, estimated that about 1,000 folks came through BlueFin on Saturday night alone. At times there was up to a half-hour wait to get in.

So how to follow that act? This Saturday Mudfrog from Santa Cruz will make their BlueFin debut. Mudfrog has been described as a mix of 'Blues Traveler' and new age with lots of college radio influence. Kicking around the Santa Cruz scene, Mudfrog is set to release its second CD Big Generation. The title of their first CD speaks volumes, Genuine Simulated Wood Paneling - Live in Santa Cruz. You may have heard Mudfrog on KMBY or KPIG but you can definitely hear them Saturday at 9:30 at BlueFin - no cover.

Mark Hummel, harpster extraordinaire, will perform at Sly McFly's this Friday night.

paniment to a margarita on the patio but I fear these guys will never hit it big with that name. The slightly more pronounceable Fermin Rivero Trio will begin playing Latin Jazz on Wednesdays from 6:30-8:30p.m. The popular Casa de Blues with Storm Nilson and Renzo Stiano on Mudfrog debuts at BlueFin this Saturday night at 9:30.

Carmel Valley's Plaza Linda is adding two more nights to its musical line-up, just in time to take advantage of the hot summer evenings. MO BO Sushi in Santa Cruz Want Sushi with an attitude? Then I would suggest giving MO BO Sushi in Santa Cruz a try. This is a fun place with great food and a unique atmosphere. To give you some idea of what is in store, the definitions of MO BO on the menu include: Japanese youth in the 1920's who wore western clothes and assimilated western ideals calling themselves modern boys or MO BO. Alludes to the integration of East and West into a symbolic world culture. The shape of your mouth when eating something delicious. Sound interesting? It is!

This new restaurant features a bar, tables, sushi bar and has live music. The night I was there the band was playing (according to a local) "fusion/folk" that was nice to listen to. The menu is extensive and includes hot and cold appetizers, soups, salads, pickle plates, sashimi, sushi, and maki. They also feature "hot boxes" which are complete meals served in a box and other hot dishes of grilled meat or fish served with rice and Udon meals.

Some of the interesting offerings you will find include, the Banana Slug (UCSC's mascot), Green Eggs and Ham, Holy Moly Maki, Pink Caddy and Moon Cruzer. It does take a while to work your way through the menu but it thankfully includes a glossary, which helps. Vegetarian items are marked, as are items that contain raw fish. If you still can't find a combination that you like, you can "roll your own" maki, starting with a basic roll and adding items from a list of over 20. Our table came up with a basic roll and added garlic, negi (green onions finely chopped) and macadamia nuts. GOOD!

This is a really fun place to go to have great sushi and I highly recommend it. MO BO Sushi is located at 105 South River Street (in the San Lorenzo Plaza), Santa Cruz. You can reach them at 831 425-1700. They are open for lunch Monday through Friday from 11:30 - 2:30pm. They are open for dinner nightly. Dinner hours: M - W, 5-10pm, Thurs.-Sat, 5 - 11pm and Sunday, 4 - 10pm.

Water Canyon tonight (July 15). "We respect the hell out of the great people that have influenced out music to this point," says Drew Allen, Cool Water's lead guitarist and vocalist, "but we want to take what they've given us and reinvent it by bringing in new elements and our youthful spirit." Cool Water Canyon hit the scene in 1995 and released its debut self-titles CD in 1998 to rave reviews. That same year the students at UC Santa Barbara voted Cold Water Canyon the "Best Area Band" and those kids know how to boogey. Their press release says Cool Water Canyon 'tends to create a dancing frenzy' and bassist Carter Beim says, "We feel that through our music we can connect with anyone because everyone likes to have a good time, including us." Well you can have some fun with Cool Water Canyon starting at 9p.m. at Long Bar tonight.

Let's play "Name That Instrument". I'm going to relay a bit of a press release and you try and guess what instrument they're talking about. "His broad palette of tone colors ranges from dark and thick to light and ethereal, often in the same riff, smothering the high frequencies on the right note, dropping the pitch at the very end. Throughout there is the plaintive throb of his vibrato that gives the sound a pathos found only in the very best players." We're talkin' the harmonica, an ethereal harmonica with pathos no less. No philistine here! The master of the magic harp, Mark Hummel, returns to Sly McFly's this Friday night. Hummel is touring in support of his latest CD Low Down to Uptown. While his press release may seem a tad lofty, Hummel has earned his kudos over a 20-year career. Blues Revue says, "Quite simply, he is one of a handful of the best players ever on the instrument..." Friday night at Sly McFly's.

I know you've been waiting with baited breath but you'll just have to wait some more. The grand opening of Starz, the soon to be hip nightclub for live music, has been postponed. No Foamscape and Lovers and Strangers for you - yet. Starz will be located at the former After Dark location and should, probably, well... maybe, be opening next weekend. The Sun will keep you posted.

WHAT'S NEXT? by Mel Vercoe

A 3rd Term?

It is now quite clear that we freedom loving Americans will have no choice but to keep President Clinton in office for a third term.

I am reminded of a picture in either a history book, or a geography book, about the time that California was being discovered. It showed somebody, maybe Balboa, standing on a hill, shading his eyes from the sun, as he looked out at the Pacific Ocean, something he had never seen before.

I don't know if the Pacific Ocean had anything to do with it, but he had some bad luck after he got home. He wound up being beheaded for treason. Anyway, we Americans have now seen the wonders of prosperity. There are several Americans within the group of about two dozen people who control a large part of the world's wealth. People who don't want to see homeless people or hungry people have learned to not look at them. Almost everybody has a credit card, and we are told, daily, about the wonderful condition of our economy.

So, why change it? How many Presidential candidates do you know, on a first name basis, that you would trust to keep things going right in the White House, either with or without interns running around carrying messages, or whatever their job is?

YOUR WORLD & MINE by Araby Colton

Four More Who Care

Barbara Clarke, Director of Redwings, the beautiful 175-acre sanctuary for some fifty abused horses, ponies, and donkeys, says: "The reasons the horses come to us have to do with abuse and neglect problems in our culture. We can all aspire to a more gentle way."

For instance: Bonnie was a rental horse with a broken back who was being ridden daily. .. Angel was so badly neglected that her overgrown hoofs were curling back toward her legs. .. At the age of five months, Calypso was about to be sold for slaughter, after being weaned so that her mother could get pregnant again quickly (the hormone-rich urine of pregnant mares is used in the drug Premarin for menopausal women...even though there are other, better drugs).

Redwings helped pass a 1998 proposition, which makes it illegal to sell horses for slaughter in California. Barbara Clarke's goal is to address the issues that give rise to violence...be it perpetrated on horses, women or children.

Sophie Craighead grew up as a lonely child whose parents were away a great deal. "But the dogs where always there for me...they never let me down," she remembers.

Today, she chairs the board of the twenty-two-year-old Delta Society, a national organization that brings pets into nursing homes, hospitals, and rehabilitation centers. She and her golden retriever, Rhoger, are regular visitors at the local nursing home in Jackson Hole, Wyoming, where she lives with her environmentalist husband, Derek, two children, six dogs, one cat, and a parrot.

"You never have a bad day when you go to a nursing home with an animal. You're making someone's life better," she says.

Her current project is to rescue animal-shelter dogs, and train them to help those with disabilities.

And maybe you love seeing animals in movies...so charming, so beautiful. Well, Pat Derby knows about animals in movies. A former Hollywood animal trailer, Pat knows how trainers frighten, beat, or even starve their animals to get them to perform. She wrote a book critical of the film industry, The Lady and Her Tiger, and she formed PAWS, an organization dedicated to protecting animals in entertainment, making a home for the abused animal casualties at a thirty-acre sanctuary near Sacramento.

The population includes elephants, grizzly bears, big cats, and primates.

"You never have a bad day when you go to a nursing home with an animal, you're making someone's life better."
Sophie Craighead, chair of the Delta Society

The sanctuary is open to the public six days a year, accepts donations, and holds benefits to support the animals. (The four elephants alone consume 800 pounds of food a day.) Pat hopes one day soon to add to the acreage over which they roam. "I feel like a jailer who runs a prison," says Pat, who believes that wild animals belong in the wild. "But I try to make it as pleasant a prison as possible."

When former debutante Diane Benedict saw the hundreds of caged dogs and cats in a Denver pound awaiting adoption or death she took twenty-three animals home, and started Dreampower, an all-volunteer, statewide organization that places unwanted animals in foster homes until they are adopted. Dreampower found permanent homes for more then 1,200 animals last year.

Diane's current foster family includes eight horses, three goats, two potbellied pigs, and a varying number of dogs and cats, all living at her home, a 160-acre ranch. Until donations and adoption fees got Dreampower on its feet, Diane personally bankrolled the project. Dreampower is proof that one private person's good ideas can have profound impact.

The Views, News and Goings-On in Carmel Valley

Storage Facility - A Matter of Conscience

By Paula Berthoin

As there are others who are addressing the proposed Mid-Carmel Valley Storage Shed project from a standpoint of ordinances and policies, I will address it from a point of view of conscience.

It certainly is an unfortunate trend of developers to feel they need to resort to bullying tactics to scare those who do not wish to see land suffocated by acres of asphalt. What are they trying to hide?

This is not a case of NIMBYism. There are already storage units in the Carmel Valley Village and more being planned in conjunction with the Canada Woods Project. Storage shed facilities, wherever they are erected, are but one example of development that adds incrementally to the multitude of problems we face and try to mitigate or fix such as increased traffic and noise levels, degraded air and water quality, loss of historic and natural aesthetics. I am reminded of the phrase "poverty of affluence". We are robbing current inhabitants and future generations of the life-sustaining forces of the earth as we act in the short term consuming more and more stuff...only to pack it away in storage sheds to pull out and use it on occasion.

It is not a question of whether or not the developer has a right to build but rather what use is appropriate for the land and neighborhood. This land has value in and of itself. A plan that could enrich this area would be to establish a Carmel River Watershed Learning Center which could include restoring the land to native habitat and the creation of a native plant garden through community involvement. Children and adults could come and learn from and take pleasure in having had a hand in creating it. Artist studios could also be part of the plan as there are all ready some in this area.

We are at point in history where hard decisions must be made, not out of fear from developers' lawyers actions, but stemming from the need to turn the tide of destruction. We are losing 20,000 species per year because of our short-sighted actions! In the words of writer Laurie John Lane-Zucker:

"We use the world, blemish our landscapes, and harm our communities. And we have the ability to re-envision the world, protect and restore our rivers and forests, and re-knit the fabric of community life."

The way to determine what the most beneficial plan will be is to study various alternatives through the EIR process.

Carmel Valley Little League

By Pam Priano

Starting off on the right foot, the team played Saturday and again on Sunday with an 11 inning 1-0 win. Matthew Rankin pitched the first 9 innings with 12 strikeouts, no walks and his teammates behind him. No batter got past 2nd base, only two reached 1st behind defensive standouts Zachary Alaga, Kellen Scanlon, Nicholas Siegal and Colin Zealear.

The last two innings, pitched by Kellen and Colin held the Gonzales team hitless. Coming back the next day the team knew their bats needed to come alive. Kellen took the mound with great control and helped himself out, going 3 for 4 with 2 fence-clearing home runs. Going 2 for 4 were Austin Cox and Zachary.

The team's success is, in large part, playing so well together and being a great group of boys. They all believe and trust each other, says Manager Gary Pennington with Coaches Peer Dew and Chip Grijalua. Other contributing team members include Craig Vandervort, Jon-Peter Meckel, Tommy Schmidt, Devon Kreyonhagen, Benjamin Dew and Michael Schmidt.

The next game is this Saturday, July 17 at 10a.m. at the Hartnell Little League Field on Iverson Street in Salinas against opponents Toro Park. Upcoming games will be updated at the ballpark and on the message machine: 659-4198. Come and support your valley team!
